

Baptism By Fire

Mark Wilkinson

You're my window; you're my newfound desire
You're the crest, you're divine
A once-in-a-lifetime oasis I spy

With a fever you walked through the door
Precisely like no one before
With a glance I was blind
When your eyes locked on mine

You rolled over me
Took your hold on me
You ballooned in my mind
And now I lie waiting, my heart salivating, my temperature starting to rise

Overthrow me
You're baptism by fire
And you resurrect my desire
You're emotional alchemy fuelling my life
Ah you've sold me
Lit your torch to the night
You're a rhythmic eclipse for all time
You're a flickering fantasy brought into life

Out the window, god you taught me to fly
You gave me the gift I denied
Your scent in the air an invisible smile

You rolled over me
Took your hold on me
You ballooned in my mind
And now I lie waiting, my heart salivating, my temperature starting to rise

Overthrow me
You're baptism by fire
And you resurrect my desire
You're emotional alchemy fuelling my life
Ah you've sold me
Lit your torch to the night
You're a rhythmic eclipse for all time

You're a flickering fantasy brought into life

You rolled over me
Took your hold on me
You ballooned in my mind
In my mind?
