By the River

Stu Larsen

One, two, three, fourBy the riverOne, two, three, fourBy the river, through the summer
I waited patiently
You would promise, with all your power
To come and rescue me
To come and set me freeAnd you were running, through the valley
Heading straight for me
My mind was shaking, but I was ready
For you to rescue me
For you to set me free
I found a letter, floating in a bottle
Being washed away to the sea
Penned by freedom, addressed to no one
For who now could it beI saw a vision, some kind of apparition
But it felt so real, so free
I had conversation, a faint of deliberation
For who now could it be
For anyone but me(Something fell apart in me)
(As I watched my soul depart from me)
(As I fade into eternity)(Something fell apart in me)
(As I watched my soul depart from me)
(As I fade into eternity)(Something fell apart in me)
(As I watched my soul depart from me)
(As I fade into eternity)
Something fell apart in me
As I watched my soul depart from me
As I fade into eternitySomething fell apart in me
As I watched my soul depart from me
As I fade into eternity
