Eclipse

The Flaming Lips

There's an eclipse in your eye
Where I used to shine
Every secret untold is a planet aligned
Don't need prophets or preachers
To make sense of the signs
When the buried and hidden
Can be seen by the blind
You're right
Some words are just unspoken
So right, then it all just falls apart
The day I break your heart
I caught my reflection
In the corner of your eye
You said don't even ask the question
And I won't tell the lie
When there's no accusations
There's no need for denial
If you hadn't heard that whisper

There'd be no need to wipe tears from your eye
You're right
Some words are best unspoken
So right, then it all just falls apart
The day I break your heart
I never took no advice
Not the foolish, not the wise
All the truth that I needed
Was right there in your smile
Every prophecy written
Of what's going to be
All beginnings and endings
They're about you and me
You're right
Some words are best unspoken
So right, until it all just falls apart
The day I break your heart
