

Keystone Clan

Read Southall

She told me she loved me, on the summer I turned 18
She was a blue eyed blonde she was every young man's dream
I was just a young pup, still wet behind the ears
Smoking left handed cigarettes and drinking cheap beer

Cousin had a single wide, out north of town
Daddy's would ground their daughters if they came around
We were a Keystone clan, not much for moonshine
Kentucky Deluxe and a 32 ounce, couple boxes of bag wine
Never took it easy, we were always hammered down
Never had girlfriends, unless they lived in separate towns
Had a little money but we never had much
The last thing we wanted was love

Yeah we're grown up now, got lives to live
All my rowdy friends are raising kids
Talk more about the old times, still make a few
But I don't see my clan as much as I used to
Never took it easy, we were always hammered down
Never had girlfriends, unless they lived in separate towns
Had a little money but we never had much
The last thing we wanted was love
The last thing we wanted was love
