Only Living Soul

David Jordan

Across the river from the shores,
Lands we explored
Nobody lives here no more
I think about the plans we had
I think about the things we said
I knew that things were turning bad
But I never thought it would end like this
I never imagined you gone
Took for granted you were always here
I yearn to feel loved by someone
But I wish now I could feel you near Gone are the days
Another chance we won't find
It's the end of our time
Across the river from the shores
Lands we explored
Nobody lives here no more
Once upon a dream there were children who once played in the dust
Now I'm the only living soul left here on my own
Nobody lives here no more, no more
The sun will never set or dawn
The moon no longer yawns
As silent as a desert world
But nobody left to share it with
I'll never see your face again
Never hold you till the sun comes up
I'll never get to see the day
The day we have a family
Now all that's left is the dust and debris
And the memories
