Growing Pains

Grieves

Yeah,
I take a breath and breathe it out Life has been a bitch, holdin' onto me I'm always freakin' out I dont play well with others i panic in the crowd An' Im quick to fall in love, thats why im always on the ground So pick it up, pop the umbrella over my problems and understand ill never be a man until i solve 'em and somtimes i wish that i could go back home, yeh Crawl into my childhood dreams and be alone And that'd be everything, just another boy left with nothing an object of security, slowly losing its stuffing the ? square's sunking looking for another motherfucking chance to re-break the broken into something, and thats the part im never gonna get growin up is more than just a mind state, and owning all your debts blowing out the breath, i dont feel so tall so tell me how im supposed to reach anything, anything at all, anything at all tell me how, can i,
grow to see the change in my life, i wanted, to overcome the battle inside what is old? .. ?
is there a better way to figure it out

I sweep it all under the rug, cover up the loss found inside of me and wash it down with blood, i was born with an option, it's hard to swim a flood but the old ? the human givin' up so pick it up, listen to all the words in my head and understand I have a shaky hand until they're set, and i don't know if i can get my mind state back but i would travel to the edge to feel that grasp and that'd be everything speakin' through a can on a line, and prophesize the future from the twinkle in my eye i could wrinkle up and die, in that room where the dreams started talking to me constantly and dancin through the sky, i'm alive, but growin' up has proved to be a task and left a couple daydreams broken down and smashed lookin' through the glass i don't feel so tall, so tell me how am i supposed to reach anything, anything at all anything at all

tell me how, can i
grow to see the change in my life
what is old? .. ?
is there a better way to figure it out? x2
