I Want You

Moloko

I want you, though you dare to deny it
I'm always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
Morning comes upon us to impose another day
Though I might try to force myself to sleep
Why should I face up to another waking day?
When there's a chance you'll come to me in dreams
The world just keeps right on turning anyway
While I stay home and watch that shadow play
Innocence is lost into the dark if I were dynamite
Would you provide the spark, oh?
I want you, though you dare to deny it
I am always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
I don't know what to do, if you dare to deny it
I'm always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
If only you could see my life turning inside out
A heart that keeps attacking me always in my mouth
If my skin were glass my love you would see
A heart that keeps on beating only in the hope that you'll return to me
I don't know what to do, though you dare to deny it
I'm always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
I want you, though you dare to deny it
I am always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
I don't know what to do, though you dare to deny it
I'm always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
I want you, I am always reminded of you
I want you, always reminded of you
Reminded of you, I'm always reminded

Always reminded of you
