Beth Crowley

You fascinated me
Cloaked in shadows and secrecy
The beauty of a broken angel I ventured carefully
Afraid of what you thought I'd be
But pretty soon I was entangled You take me by the hand
I question who I am Teach me how to fight
I'll show you how to win
You're my mortal flaw
And I'm your fatal sin
Let me feel the sting, the pain, the burn under my skin Put me to the test
I'll prove that I am strong
Won't let myself believe that what we feel is wrong
I finally see what you knew was inside me all along That behind this soft exterior
Lies a warrior My memory refused
To separate the lies from truth
And search the past my mind created I kept on pushing through Standing resolute, which you
In equal measure loved and hated You take me by the hand
I'm seeing who I am Teach me how to fight
I'll show you how to win
You're my mortal flaw
And I'm your fatal sin
Let me feel the sting, the pain, the burn under my skin Put me to the test
I'll prove that I am strong
Won't let myself believe that what we feel is wrong
I finally see what you knew was inside me all along That behind this soft exterior
Lies a warrior Lies a warrior You take me by the hand
I'm sure of who I am Teach me how to fight
I'll show you how to win
You're my mortal flaw
And I'm your fatal sin
Let me feel the sting, the pain, the burn under my skin Put me to the test
I'll prove that I am strong
Won't let myself believe that what we feel is wrong
I finally see what you knew was inside me all along That behind this soft exterior
Lies a warrior The pictures come to life
Wake in the dead of night
Open my eyes, I must be dreaming Clutch my pillow tight
Brace myself for the fight

I've heard that seeing is believing
