Sunsets

Eighty Four

Sunsets over the beaches from now on
Each day looking for new ways to go onMaybe I should drop by, maybe I should have called
Maybe I should have followed you and beat down your door
Maybe it's gonna be breaking you every time you fall
But to shower you with pity will do you no good at all, no good at allSlow burn watching the world turn from my arms
New way of measuring each day 'til it's goneMaybe I should drop by maybe I should have called
Maybe I should have followed you and beat down your door
Maybe it's gonna be breaking you every time you fall
But to shower you with pity will do you no good at all, no good at allSunrise building a reprise in my heart
Regret tight around my chest, plays its part
'Til it's gone, 'til it's goneBut to shower you with pity will do you no good at all, no good at allNow we're watching the sunset, sunset, sunset, sunset
Over the beaches, beaches, beaches, beaches
Watching the sunset, sunset, sunset, sunset
Over the beaches, beaches, beaches, beachesWatching the sunset, sunset, sunset, sunset
Over the beaches, beaches, beaches, beaches
Watching the sunset, sunset, sunset, sunset
Over the beaches, beaches, beaches, beaches
