

Someone Special

Sounds Like Sunset

I wake up to the sound of rain upon my sill
Pick up the pieces of my yesterday old thrill
Can I deliver this used up shiver
To how I pronounce my life
And I leave it up to faith to go by its own will
Back row to the left, a little to the side
Slightly out of the place
Look beyond the light, where you'd least expect
There's someone special
A foggy morning greets me quietly today
I smell a fragrance in the wind blowing my way
And ever further I run to find her
I yearn to define my life
Placing my faith in chance to meet me in half way

Slightly out of the place
Look beyond the light, where you'd least expect
There's someone special
And she's here to write her name
On my skin with kisses
In the rain, hold my head and ease my pain
In a world that's gone insane
Slightly out of the place
Look beyond the light, where you'd least expect
There's someone special
