Caspian Can Wait

The Velvet Teen

he waits for the greater silence as every day goes faster a cipher he knows too well of killing himself by looking closeryou got so much love locked up inside you just waiting to come out you'll heal the world in spite of itself and make a better one you say you're a veteranhe waits for the reign of his tyrants to tire of their games, god save him he'll be the one to fracture their fractus castles and scatter their tiers on the pavementyou've got so much love locked up inside you bursting at the seams you'll kill the world in spite of itself
you say you're a veterancaspian can wait sometimes he'll be in the way sometimes immortalized with every anguish we yield this is our christening nobody's listeningcaspian can wait sometimes
immortalized with every anguish we sell this is our chirstening nobody's listening
