They Don't Grow Enough Roses

Blaine Larsen

Did you really think she'd let you in with that bouquet
Welcome you with open arms and say, "It's okay"
Well, them long stemmed apologies won't work no more
'Cause she can't see the beauty, just a hand full of thornsAnd they don't grow enough roses to undo the damage done
Clouds don't make enough raindrops
And it's too much to expect from the sun
You can shower her in petals but it won't change the fact
They don't grow enough roses to get your woman backBoy, looks like she finally made you understand
Love can wilt away like the flowers in your hand
Well, honesty might well be your saving grace
But you won't see forgiveness in another pretty faceAnd they don't grow enough roses to undo the damage done
Clouds don't make enough raindrops
And it's too much to expect from the sun
You can shower her in petals but it won't change the fact
They don't grow enough roses to get your woman backNow, you can shower her in petals but it won't change the fact
They don't grow enough roses to get your woman back
