Somebody Out There

The Calling

Well, the scene begins, a little girl is crying
And the light in the hallway is dim
And she sits right back and thinks of the reason
Why nothing will fall into placeShe gets more and more curious with every day
More furious in every way
And she screams out loud, "Whys it happening to me?"
And the answer is, "It's meant to be"Well, she's on her knees and begging please
She wonders if there's somebody out there
To make things wrong, to make things right
It might be, that there's somebody out thereShe moves amongst the crowd, the people they walk by
She questions why they'll have to die
If it's part of our lives, so beautiful and precious
She knows that she shouldn't be afraid of all thisWell, she's on her knees and begging please
She wonders if there's somebody out there
To make things wrong, to make things right
It might be, that there's somebody out there, somebody out thereThere's times that she hates you, there's times that she thanks you
And hopes that you might understand
It gets hard down here, so many things to fear
But it's all just a sign that you're nearWell, she's on her knees and begging please
She wonders if there's somebody out there
To make things wrong, to make things right
It might be, that there's somebody, somebody out there, yeahOh, there's somebody out there, yeah, oh
There's somebody, there's somebody, somebody out there, oh

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/