Your Soul And Mine

Gil Scott-heron

standing in the ruins of another blackmans life or flying through the valley seperating day and night i am death cried the vulture, for the people of light k ron brought his rath from the the sea that sails on souls and saw the scavenger departing,taking warm hearts to the cold he knew the ghetto was a haven,for the meanest creature ever know and the wilderness of heartbreak,and a desert of dispair evils clarion of justice shrieks a cry of naked terror taking babies from their mommas,leaving grief beyond compare so if you see the vultures coming,flying circles in your mind remember there is no escaping where evil follow close behind only promise we've battled for your soul,and mine,and mine
