I remember you
When you are wrapped in darkness
When the world closes her eyes
I remember youI think of resting with you
When you finally go to sleep
Meet me in the closet of your heart
So you can lay at my feetWho is this, they said to me
That the wind and waves obey?
Come, let's hang him on a tree
That his reign should pass awayBut here I am, I say to you
Though you turn away, it is my will
To love you for forevermore
Peace be stillI ache for you
When my body cracks and I sigh
When I am wrapped in darkness
When the world closes her eyesI think of you
When I breathe, I rise and I bow
When time passes and stands still
Then, there, here, and nowWho is this, they said to me
That the wind and waves obey?
Come, let's hang him on a tree
That his reign should pass awayBut here I am, I say to you
Though you turn away, it is my will
To love you for forevermore
Peace be stillWho is this, they said to me
That the wind and waves obey?
Come, let's hang him on a tree
That his reign should pass awayBut here I am, I say to you
Though you turn away, it is my will
To love you for forevermore
Peace be still
