Maybe Tonight

Catie King

I see the way you're looking at me
The air is thick I'm beginning to see
The smoke clear
Oh and can you hear
I'm in the nervous breaths that you breathe
I'm seeping into the space between
Don't lie
I see it in your eyesI don't want you to make it easier
Cause I know that you feel it too
I just want you to let it sink in deeper
And I'll hope my voice rings in youMaybe tonight,
When your body hits the bed
When it's quiet in your room
It might get louder in your head
Maybe tonight,
I'll linger on your skin
You'll let it play again and again
Maybe tonightI see the way you're closing the space
With every inch my doubts fade away
I see
How it's different with me
You're in the lyrics on the radio
Cause you're the song I want to know
Sing it back to me
Sing it back to meMaybe tonight,
When your body hits the bed
When it's quiet in your room
It might get louder in your head
Maybe tonight,
I'll linger on your skin
You'll let it play again and again
Maybe tonightGive me the chance to make these lyrics my words
They've been trapped in my throat
And theyre beginning to burn
I know that you've only ever known hurt
Let me show you the side of love
That you've never learned
And don't you tell me that you don't feel a thing
There's a fire in your eyes

The warmth has reached right through me
Can't you hear me? I just want you to know
That I'm holding out hope
And I'm never letting goCause maybe tonight,
When your body hits the bed
When it's quiet in your room
It might get louder in your head
Maybe tonight,
I'll linger on your skin
You'll let it play again and again
Maybe tonight
