How Can I Just Start Again

Oscar Benton

How can I just start again?
Here alone the nights are colder.
You were shelter from the rain,
You took the weight from off my shoulders.All the white has turn to gray,
And the Sun's no longer golden.
As the music fades away makes me feel
Like I've been stolen.Through the night down bellow
Dusty wide winds are blowing,
Tears me to the bone,
Cuts me deep.
You were my morning!
How can I just start again
When the tears are barely drying?
As the walls come closing in
Here I am slowly dying.Through the night down bellow
Dusty wide winds are blowing,
Tears me to the bone,
Oh, cuts me deep.
You were my morning!How can I just start again?
Hearts don't mend like broken soldiers.
You were shelter from the rain,
You took the weight from off my shoulders.How can I just start again?
Here alone the nights are colder.
You were shelter from the rain,
You took the weight from off my shoulders.
How can I just start again?
Here alone the nights are colder.
You were shelter from the rain,
You took the weight from off my shoulders.
