

Pages

3 Doors Down

What happens to a man when he spills his heart over a page
And he watches words float away then
His feelings lie on a page alone There waiting for someone who cares to read them
To open their eyes to see them
To see if they can make his thoughts their own To find out that maybe your life's not perfect
Maybe it's not worth what he gives away You can see that this broken soul is bleeding
So you conceal your feelings inside yourself
And wander through my heart Letting you see through me now only consumes me
Forget your pain and watch me fall apart What happens to a soul when he's trapped inside his emotions
And all of these words he's spoken
They bind him to the life he's left behind And every new step he takes
He knows that he might not make it
To all of these dreams that he has yet to find Maybe your life's not perfect
Or maybe it's not worth what he gives away You can see that this broken soul is bleeding
So you conceal your feelings inside yourself
And wander through my heart Letting you see through me now only consumes me
Forget your pain and watch me fall apart
As I fall apart You can see that this broken soul is bleeding
So you conceal your feelings inside yourself
And wonder through my heart Letting you see through me now only consumes me
Forget your pain and watch me fall apart
As I fall apart

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>