Radio

Ryan Bingham

Hey, baby, won't you come and kiss me
I need your love tonight
Wrap you arms all the way around me
Tell me I'm alright
I know the hardest part of living
Is letting go
Bad dreams and sad memories
Keep playing on my radio
My radio makes me want to just lose my head
My radio makes me want to just lose my head
In your car, driving on the freeway
You put your hand in mind
My radio is static like cocaine
I never close my eyes
I've always heard that you could dream
Beyond your doubts
I hesitate but I know my transceiver
Is living in the here and now
My radio makes me want to just lose my head
My radio makes me want to just lose my head
So take me out to the middle of somewhere
So I can hear the moonlight
My radio is breaking up and I feel
I got the wires crossed inside
I know I feel this way
'Cause I keep it to myself
I can't go on this way
Honey, baby, I need some help
My radio makes me want to just lose my head
My radio makes me want to just lose my head
My radio plays me over and over again
My radio makes me want to just lose my head
Hey, baby, won't you come and kiss me
I need your love tonight
Wrap you arms all the way around me
Tell me I'm alright
I know the hardest part of living
Is letting go
Bad dreams and sad memories

Keep playing on my radio
