Drop Your Deity

People Corrupting People

One million people rotting in this town
While I feel so alone
Without someone there by my side
How can I call this home?
Should I give up, should I give in
And let faith take me for a ride?
Iâ€™m happy with the shade of the grass here
Iâ€™m not worried about the other side

I give credit to the psalms and the rosaries
They led so many so far, so easily
Up the river, without a paddle, without a guide
My heart is sending out a call
Will you answer before I see the fall (of man)
And all the chaos thatâ€™s a result of his ignorant hand

Thereâ€™s no peace for the peaceful
Only rest granted when youâ€™re dead
They may roll out the coffins
But you donâ€™t have to go to bed
Our time here is so short
And our numbers are so small
So drop your deity and watch the giant fall

Another sunset on a different sky
Takes me to a different place where I felt just fine
Childhood innocence lost in the sands of time
So live in sin or die in fear, either way you are alone
You can sit and wait for nothing to happen, or make it happen on your own

Thereâ€™s no peace for the peaceful
Only rest granted when youâ€™re dead
They may roll out the coffins
But you donâ€™t have to go to bed
Our time here is so short
And our numbers are so small
So drop your deity and watch the giant fall
