Summon me with screams, soak me on the heave, a figure on a cliff, another on the beach
She liked to take a drink, I liked her when she did
Her face would come alight, her words would all be right
Full of fun on fire And if your face is in the soil
And in your eyes the threads of roots and creatures coil
A hole just like a broken bowl
Flowers grow here from above
No one ever sings a song When youâ€™re gone
Instrumental Trace a message on your skin
Strike a tone across the rockers of your wrists
I wish you all the very best To grow flowers from all the backs of all your heads
Every day, weâ€™ve all been so afraid
Away away away away away Instrumental
And with the wind across the grass
Comes the twinge of something changing in your heart
You shed your skin in slow decay
You bend the world to your own shape
No one ever sings a song
No one ever does, no one ever does
No one ever does, no one ever does
When youâ€™re gone When youâ€™re gone When youâ€™re gone When youâ€™re gone
When youâ€™re gone When youâ€™re gone When youâ€™re gone
