

She Changes Your Mind

Copeland

She changes your mind, when you see the joy in her eyes
It makes you feel, it makes you feel
She draws your eyes from all the things that made you numb
It makes you feel, it makes you feel If I could open up my heart and let her out
And I would never have to sing her name aloud
It was your hello that kept me hanging on every word, and your goodbye
That keeps me listening for your voice around each corner
It keeps me listening for your voice around each corner And I'll sing songs, to help me stay up all night long
'Cause I don't want to go to sleep
And I'll sing a song, and hope you're listening carefully
And know exactly what I mean, you know exactly what I mean If I could open up my heart and let her out
And I would never have to sing her name aloud
It was your hello that kept me hanging on every word, and your goodbye
That keeps me listening for your voice around each corner
It keeps me listening for your voice around each corner It's the song you must seek out
When your night has just begun
In the distance you can find
The lips from which was sung a melody It was your hello that kept me hanging on every word, and your goodbye
That keeps me listening for your voice around each corner
I was hanging on every word, and your goodbye
It keeps me listening for your voice around each corner
It keeps me listening for your voice around each corner
