

Morning

Jason Crabb

All of us have felt some pain
You wanna quit and walk away
It's not getting better
You're loosing heart, you're loosing faith
You're not sure things will be okay
And will this storm be over?
But you hold on to hope When the rain still pours, but the sun cannot stay hidden for long
And the grey will leave, and the blue covers everything
Joy comes in the morning
It's hard to stand, it's hard to wait
Just to see a better day
When you're here in thunder
The winds are raging at your door
Though you know you've been here before
There's no need to wonder
But you hold on to hope When the rain still pours, but the sun cannot stay hidden for long
And the grey will leave, and the blue covers everything
Joy comes in the morning
And the clouds are all gone, and the dawn ...is coming
The dark is blind, as on outer streets
And your heart is all full and you think for this good
And you look back and see
When the rain still pours, but the sun cannot stay hidden for long
And the grey will leave, and the blue covers everything
Joy comes in the morning
When the rain still pours, but the sun cannot stay hidden for long
And the grey will leave, and the blue covers everything
Joy comes in the morning
Joy comes in the morning.

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>