Beautiful People

Sam Ock

Hello Mr. Handsome and Ms. Real Beautiful I'm feelin' good, hope the feelings are mutual If not, well I got the remedy, the cure Don't get it twisted, my intentions are pure I just want to address an ongoing issue we all struggle with it, maybe with tears and tissues misusing adjectives, the name of the game calling some people beautiful and other people plain can I just say that we are going insane? putting things on pedestals which are truly inane got the new kicks and clothes but we still complain are we really afraid of being some kind of "lame" well, I'm a messenger with something to say you, yes you are beautiful in every way don't let the world tell you anything else and put a big smile on, 'cause it's good for your health (and sing) even when the sun goes down I will shine and spread my love around even when the moon goes out I will shine and give my love, my love to you! now I'm not trying to say that your troubles go away I'm just trying to tell you that you're lookin' nice today even with your sweatpants on your big, bright smile makes my worries go gone!
I think we all forget how far our words go mean things to say can make a nice day ice cold we all know the small things in life: the smiles, the compliments, that help us get by so please take this song as a gentle reminder that life is much BRIGHTER if you're generally kinder so once you've done said it, you can't hit rewind and just remember, words are the gates to the mind and the soul; love is what fills the holes in the gaps of the hearts that will break the old mold if you're resonating with me that love matters the most from me to you, then I do propose this toast (and so we sing)
