

The Final Flight of D.B. Cooper

Victims of Circumstance

Some night before Thanksgiving 1971 he boarded Northwest airlines 305 Leaving out of Portland saying
"20 years on an assembly line 5 days every week is worse than any kind of prison time they could ever hand to me"

And he took one step, over the edge
he went missing, never to be heard from again
One step, over the line
he went missing, yeah he jumped into the night
and he was gone

Shortly after takeoff
He handed in a note demanding 10,000 20 dollar bills and 4 civilian chutes and he spent 40 years trying to get ahead but always played for keeps "so now I'm taking steps and no regrets you can catch me if you can"

And he took one step, over the edge
he went missing, never to be heard from again
One step, over the line
and he was gone

Sax Solo

And he took one step, over the edge
he went missing, never to be heard from again
One step, over the line
and he was gone

He jumped and he was gone
He jumped and he was gone

He jumped and he was gone
