

King of the Mountain

Midnight Oil

Walking through the high dry grass
Pushing my way through slow
Yellow belly black snake sleeping on a red rock
Waiting for the stranger to go Sugar train stops at the crossing
Cane cockies cursing below
Bad storm coming
Better run to the top of the mountain Mountain in the shadow of light
Rain in the valley below
Mountain in the shadow of light
Rain in the valley below Well, you could say you're Peter
Say you're Paul
Don't put me up on your bedroom wall
Call me king of the mountain Blacksmith fires up the bellows
Cane cutters burning the load
Workers of the world
Run to the top of the mountain Mountain in the shadow of light
Rain in the valley below
Mountain in the shadow of light
Rain in the valley below Well, you could say you're Peter
Say you're Paul
Don't put me up on your bedroom wall
Call me king of the mountain Well, I can't take the hands from my face
There are some things we can't replace, yeah Mountain in the shadow of light
Rain in the valley below
Mountain in the shadow of light Well, you could say you're Peter
Say you're Paul
Don't put me up on your bedroom wall
Call me king of the mountain Well, you could say you're Peter
Say you're Paul
Don't put me up on your bedroom wall
Call me the king of the mountain Over liquid tarmac wastelands of cactus and heat
Down cobblestone alleyways of washing day sheets
Up ghost prairie mountains of sunset and space Down the road, a familiar place, across the wilderness
Out further than the bush, I will follow you
I will follow you, I will follow you
