

Volunteers of America

Both

The contract's a joke, but when you see smoke
You run toward the fire
'cause you must They all called your name when the crash finally came Then left you to pick up the dust
I saw you walking in silence down to the bridge
But nothing went over the side
So I guess to someone with your heritage Withdrawal, like consent, is implied And it's true - no one else will do what you do Volunteers of America, I'm calling you
What makes you feel you're less than ideal
If you can't get over it all?
That walk-away clause can't be just because You're mad at the Cross on the wall Oh, and the last time I saw you, with that hole in your side
I had to put my hand in to believe Oh, but I couldn't meet those elephant eyes
And you couldn't take time to grieve
And it's true - no one else
will do what you do
Volunteers of America, I'm calling you
With your thousand-yard stare and your caretaker's hair
I guess we're not sleeping again You're up there online, building your shrine
A go-to solution that then Come tomorrow, you'll tear down again
So bring out your poor, your washed on the shore
Your refuse, your teeming depressed You take them all in, 'cause that's where you've been
A person who has to say "yes"
And every Sunday and Wednesday you pay homage to

The naked and martyred and dead Where every crypt tells the story, the story of you
Where bodies aren't bodies, they're bread
And it's true - no one else
will do what you do
Volunteers of America, I'm calling you
