American Hearts

Blacklist Royals

They were married in September, back in 1969

They traveled, these two Indians

To find some peace of mind, they stood for love and freedom

They were children of their time, oh, oh They lived in a world that was cold and uncaring

They swore they would change it with loving and sharing

They'll never live like their parents have done

Their innocence shone like the sunAmerican hearts

So filled with emotion

American hearts

So easily brokenNow they've got a family and a cottage in the hills

He's always working late to pay the mortgage and the bills

And she has trouble sleeping

So the doctor gives her pills, oh, ohWho are these strangers who used to be lovers?

Now they've got nothing to say to each other

Too far apart to discuss their mistakes

They filed for divorce and it breaks their American hearts

So filled with emotion

American hearts

So easily brokenAh, American hearts

Ah, American hearts, American heartsNow that it's over, they'll each go on living

Never forgetting but somehow forgiving

They'll care for their children, protect them with pride

And that's how their dream will survive in American hearts

So filled with emotion

American hearts

So easily brokenAmerican hearts

So filled with emotion

American hearts

So easily broken

Lyrics provided by

https://damnlyrics.com/