

The London Sun

Wheatus

Socrates ain't got nothing on me
When it comes to over thinking
Paranoid that's how I prefer to be
Into the ground I'm sinkingThen you call and you say
    To me in your ordinary way
    That you cant help me out
Of the ordinaryYoure just like the London Sun, man
    Youre over and done with, before youve begun
    And I wont be like the only one
Who would stand there and smile and try to be funWhen I say, hey baby, what went wrong
    We go back to beginnings, the storys too long
    To be told like you were the only one
Who ever got left in the dark by the London SunHurricanes are blowing out my brains
    But my eyes are calm and hollow
    Airplane stalls from the sky it falls
You can read the news tomorrowThen you call and you say
    To me in your ordinary way
    That your life has become
Too fucking ordinaryYoure just like the London Sun, man
    Youre over and done with, before youve begun
    And I wont be like the only one
Who would stand there and smile and try to be funWhen I say, hey baby, what went wrong
    We go back to beginnings, the storys too long
    To be told like you were the only one
Who ever got left in the dark by the LondonLeave if you wanna leave, its alright
    I know what its like to feel like
Life is passing byWhen you are stuck in the place you're in Ordinary space you're in
    I'm stuck at a nook in the place
That I'm stuck in with youYou're just like the London Sun, man
    You're over and done with, before you've begun
    And I wont be like the only one
Who would stand there and smile and try to be funWhen I say, hey baby, what went wrong
    We go back to beginnings, the story's too long
    To be told like you were the only one
Who ever got left in the dark by the LondonYou're just like the London Sun, man
    You're over and done with, before you've begun
    And I won't be like the only one
Who would stand there and smile and try to be funWhen I say, hey baby, what went wrong

We go back to beginnings, the story's too long
To be told like you were the only one
Who ever got left in the dark by the London Sun
By the London Sun
By the London Sun
By the London Sun
By the London Sun
