

Leaving This Heartache For A Song

Alyssa Bonagura

Well the snow falls down in Cambridge
But it skips the icy ground
It must have known that life's so fragile
To ever be held down
And it's tellin' me there must be something
Tryin' to move on
So I'm leavin' this heartache for a song
There's always something missing
Around here in my home
Guess when life keeps moving faster
It gets harder on your own
And God must think I'm crazy
When I say I feel alone
So I'm leavin' this heartache for a song
And the days keep getting shorter
And my heart keeps wearin' thin
And the only thing that ever stays the same here anymore
Is the air I leave when I walk out the door
And I got everything I've ever wanted, and more
But I still don't know just what I'm lookin' for My heart got in Nashville
And it's tearin' me apart
Cause when you want someone that you can't have You live life in the dark
And that's far from what I'd want my love to feel like when I'm gone
So I'm leavin' this heartache for a song
And the days keep getting shorter
And my heart keeps wearin' thin
There's nothin' that can keep us here
Together anymore, and the miles
Keep runnin' from your door
I got everything I've ever wanted, and more
But I still don't know just what I'm lookin' for Oohh ooh ooh ah ah ah, ah ah ah ah
The only thing that ever stays the same here anymore
Is the air I leave when I walk out the door
And I got everything I ever wanted, and more
But I still don't know just what I'm lookin' for
No, I still don't know just what I'm, I'm lookin' for
