

Ask the Kids

Minor Detail

Have you asked your kids today why they feel dissatisfied?

Have you told them that they must succeed then turned around and walk awayHave you asked your kids today
why they feel dissatisfied?

Do you know what they want of you Have you really listened when they repliedThey're out of school and they can't get work

They stand around and watch the sky
They read the papers looking for jobs Everyday is the same reply

They wonder will they have a choice to fulfill their own dreams

(Ask, ask, ask the kids)They wander around They've nothing to do

Empty inside they're lost and alone
They seldom hear words of hope From parents who've got no time

They wonder will they have a choice to fulfill their own dreamsHave you asked your kids today
why they feel dissatisfied?

Have you told them that they must succeed
then turned around and walked awayHave you asked your kids today
why they feel dissatisfied?

Do you know what they want of you
Have you really listened when they repliedThey find their house is not a home

They don't receive a helping hand They can't see why they're not understood and never hear supporting words

Perfection's not what kids demand
All the want is love and praise (Ask, ask, ask the kids)

Sometimes its good when parents say We don't always know the way

When together they can share their doubts
Their kids might then be satisfied
Perfection's not what kids demand
All they want is love and praiseIt's a fact
