Ginny Owens

Turning molehills into mountains
Making big deals out of small ones
Bearing gifts as if they're burdens
This is how it's beenFear of coming out of my shell
Too many things I can't do too well
Afraid I'll try real hard and I'll fail
This is how it's been'Til the day You pounded
On my heart's door
And You shouted joyfully
"You're not a slave anymore"You're free to dance
Forget about your two left feet
And you're free to sing
Even joyful noise is music to meAnd you're free to love
'Cause I've given you my love
And it's made you free
I have set you freeMy mind finds hard to believe
That You became humanity
And changed the course of history
Because You loved me soAnd my heart cannot understand
Why You'd accept me as I am
But You say You've always had a plan
And that's all I need to knowSo when I am consumed
By what the world will say
It's then You're singing to me
As You remove my chainsYou're free to dance
Forget about your two left feet
And you're free to sing
Even joyful noise is music to meAnd you're free to love
'Cause I've given you my love
And it's made you free
I have set you freeFree from worry
Free from envy and denial
Free to live, free to give
Free to smileYou're free to dance
Forget about your two left feet
And you're free to sing
Even joyful noise is music to meAnd you're free to love
'Cause I've given you my love
And it's made you free

I've given you my love
And it's made you free
I've set you free
