

Tiger Striped Sky

Roo Panes

Pouncing ray to ray to through the dappled shadows,
Light was pouring down upon the stepping-stones,
It felt like morning coming for its throne,
But I don't know why it looked like a tiger striped sky. Well, half the world was pulling on its colours,
As night surrendered day to the hours,
Glow was coming down, coming down,
I don't know why but it felt like a tiger striped sky. Tell me why I'm underneath this tiger striped sky! Tired of seeing adventures on a café wall,
I think I'll take a turn from the known road,
I think I'll write a tale of my own,
I'm going southbound to where the ocean's flirting with the coast.
I'll be giving up my stripes,
Be painting with new colours beginning with dove white!
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>