The Final Conquest

English Dogs

Once were a people who stood so tall
The world lay before you, you're now prepared to fall
Dividing and ruling as you did please
The powerful nations were down on their kneesNo one could stop the almighty attacks
No one could summon the strength to fight back
The country in ruins had fallen before
The empire knocked down then opened death's doorVictory surrounds you
As you strive to win
They have the last laugh
Murder and madness, destruction beginsWinning was easy until you forgot
That fighting was easy, but dying was not
Losing more men than your armies supplied
Dangerous enemy made sure that you died
But it wasn't you who had taken the toll
It was your troops who were forced to enroll
Scurging back to live low like a worm
Your empire is beaten, your ego is burntVictory surrounds you
As you strive to win
They have the last laugh
Murder and madness, destruction beginsOn the defensive, as they were before
They've taken the empires within their on laws
Marching to murder, and starving you out
From inside the palace they all hear you shoutYou've taken control over my country and men
You've taken it once now, but never again
Not whilst I'm living and learning to hide
The act of revenge will be my suicide
Victory surrounds you
As you strive to win
They have the last laugh
Murder and madness, destruction beginsVictory surrounds you
As you strive to win
They have the last laugh
Murder and madness, destruction begins
