

Something's About To Change

Robin Trower

I head out to the horizon
On downward paths of rolling green
One less prize to keep my eyes on
One more place I cannot name
I know something is different now
I know something's about to change I cast off faded colours
Maybe find who I am
Knowing like those careless others
Is not a virtue I can claim
I know something is different now
I know something's about to change
Moving on
I'm moving on
From the last untruthful game
The tangled life has come and gone
By friendly fire yeah such a shame
But I know something is different now
I know something's about to change
But I know something is different now
I know something's about to change
