

Woods of Sipse

Claire Lynch

In the woods of Sipse
The trees are so tall, an unscalable wall
So high and green
Oh beware in Sipse
There are snakes on the ground they move with no sound
If you happen to venture in In the woods of Sipse
No lights after dark, except for the stars
That hang in space
When the air is misty
It hovers the glade with shadow and shade
It's a backward, forsaken place! And the mulberry river sings where the birds still have room for their wings they fly fly. over my home down in the woods of Sipse There's a path in Sipse That leads to the graves where my ancestors lay
It comforts me
Just to know in Sipse
A light year from now, in this same hallowed ground
I'll be resting in peaceful sleep
