The Seasons

Dear, I need to make you understand
It's black and white, each satellite is part of an expanding rubber band
And so, that's why it's turning in my mind
I think it's this but then it's that it's fine I guess it happens all the time
And so the moon just rolls around the Earth
Yet they both just roll around the sun
You see we're always part of something bigger than ourselves
I need the sun, I need the sun
I need the sun, I need the sun
Streets and lights were meant to suit the night
Each passing car's a shooting star I know it's complicated but it's right
And so, I walk, I feel it all inside
I'm not so big yet not so small
It's scary but I'm orbiting it all
And so the moon just rolls around the Earth
Yet they both just roll around the sun
You see we're always part of something bigger than ourselves
