

London Bridge

Bread

I know the times the time's are hard to bear
It's hard to find someone to really care
But before I went down and out
Here's what I used to think about, think about London bridge was always fallin' down
But there it stood within the heart of town
Reminding everyone of life behind and life to come The changes taking place are everywhere
The centuries past have nothing to compare
Oh where they stand, where they trip and fall
Watch the writing on the wall, on the wall London bridge is fallin' down at last
And so another member of the past
Has fell beneath the blade
But soon the dead may be repaid I know things just can't evolve for all eternity
The thoughts will leave, will never die
And now so you can see London bridge is finally fallen down
They packed it up and shipped it outta town
And though the heart is gone
And the memory will linger on London bridge is finally fallen down
It used to stand within the heart of town
Reminding everyone of life behind and life to come London bridge is finally fallen down
[Incomprehensible]
