Oklahoma Wind

Paul Bogart

december 1944
a tulsa boy was off to war rnd huddled in the trench in the arden forest snow Riding to his tulsa girl he said i am in a different world its so white and quiet tonight, nothing like home i gotta go and miss you so write me back and tell me that that oklahoma wind is blowing once again
red dirt covers everything in sight and i am trying to be strong but i have been gone so long i am wishing you were in my arms tonight but there's nothing i can do but whisper i love you and pray that you can hear me in the oklahoma wind

april 1945
grand daddy fought and died there was too much sniper fire in those bombed out german streets and in the bible in his pack the letter grand ma wrote him back honey hurry safely home there's someone you should meet her eyes are blue she smiles like you she loves to lay and listen to this oklahoma wind
but you've been gone so long
this oklahoma wind
