More Than Nothing

Thomas Newman

You talk like a suicide's poem
Open and tired of trying to please everyone
You kiss like you don't need to breathe
Tied to my frame like my name in between your teethYou smile like you're a kid
With eyes so surprised by the happiness within
You think like a poet's heart
Inspired but tired of words tearing you apartBut you're more than nothing, love. You are all I want x4You stare through me like a ghost
Daunting, you're haunting my soul when I turn to go
You love like you've never loved at all
You're open, unbroken...incapable of making wallsBut you're more than nothing, love. You are all I want x4*interlude*Don't feel bad x5
