Twentysomething

Young & Sick

The sun is out but I am overcast
And I'll give you
Polite smiles to hide my problems.Oh, I'm aware that I'm the luckiest alive
And all of my problems
Are a luxury.But I can't seem to shake the feeling
The skies are falling
And I'm alone
Like you're alone.
Where's home?I'm pretty sure the world's end is near
But it ain't a part of my fears.
I'm a Twentysomething.Still not used to my skin
I'm Lovin' the scars though,
The cuts and the bruises.[Chorus]
And I can't wait for this night to be over
And over.
Sick of finding out who the hell I am
Over and over
over and over.My dreams about beloved are so damn good
'Cause I got your healing hands
On me.Oh, yes I know I've got a healthy body
But what about my mind?But I can't seem to let the light in.
My inner child is dying
And I'm alone
Like you're alone.
What have we done?I know my clocks are tickin'
Don't really care what comes after.
Life, love, and death
Are the same.[Chorus]
And I can't wait for this night to be over
And over.
Sick of finding out who the hell I am
Over and over
over and over.
