

Close Range

16 Frames

First you fall in love then you make
When you've had enough you start to fake it
With someone on the phone

But you're not listening and she's not coming homeRemember when you met so picture perfect

She's meeting all your friends because it's worth it

And they can only see what you cannot see

The things you won't believeThen you wake up to the big change

To the break up done at close range

And that love is such a cruel thing

What you want you got but you can't hold on anymoreYou ask her what is wrong, she can't explain it

It's something that was strong just started fading

But every thing's alright and you believe her

She turns off the lightsWhen the morning comes it's when it hits you

She's standing all alone saying she'll miss you

There's someone at the door, because she's leaving

You fall into the floorThen you wake up to the big change

To the break up done at close range

And that love is such a cruel things

What you want you got but you can't hold on anymoreI said best of luck

They said easier than done

Best of luck, I said easierThen you wake up to the big change

To the break up done at close range

And that love is such a cruel thing

What you want you got but you can't hold onThen you wake up to the big change

To the break up done at close range

And that love is such a cruel thing

What you want you got but can't hold on anymoreYou can't hold on anymore

You can't hold on anymore

What you want you got

You can't hold on anymore
