

Voyager II

Threshold

a ruby eye of beguiling light winking at orions might she lures the gallilean mind a new beginning for mankind and on her face for ages past we gazed through eyes of polished glassa voyager once landed there and filled with pictures all the air and awakened yearnings in our heart a home coming or a brand new start we travelled months in weightless grace traversing voids of time and space to build what caused our death on earth that here might start our kind's rebirthcome in little earth you cannot hear me now
and i'm never coming back again hello little earth you cannot reach me now and i'm never coming down againnine generations now surviving since our many coloured land has died and we emerged from biospheres onto a virgin land in tears for when we took our first few paces into eden's newest pages we realised what we'd guessed before this was our real home after allcome in little earth you cannot hear me now
and i'm never coming back again
and i'm never coming down againdon't know what i'm hoping to find looking for my peace of mind don't know what i'm hoping to find looking for my peace of mindcome in little earth you cannot hear me now
and i'm never coming back again
and i'm never coming down again
