I Like the Way You Cook

Tim O'Brien

I like the way you cook, the whole production
And how you serve it up, the whole seduction
Of the color and the smell, the presentation
The texture on the tongue, I get impatient
To taste a little more, little more, little more, a little moreI like to watch you stir, I like the motion
Of your side to side, the locomotion
Of your up and down, you got me groovin' to every little lick
I watch you stir a little more, little more, little more, little more, a little moreI know I could learn if you showed me how
I'd put on the apron, start right now
I'd measure the spices, do all the prep
Just to be there beside you step by stepI like the way you talk, you're in the kitchen
Stirrin' up the sauce, you're reminiscin'
You move across the floor, you know I'm watchin'
Read between the lines, You let me watch
A little more, little more, little more, little more, a little moreI like the way you cook, the whole production
And how you serve it up, the whole seduction
Of color and the smell, the presentation
The texture on the tongue, I get impatient
To taste a little more, little more, little moreI want some more, a little more, little more
Please more, a little more, a little more
Give me more, a little more, can have a little more
