

River Low

Joan Shelley

From that cold November I've learned so much more don't you see, she wears a diamond ring but I kinda like the river low

Soft and low

In my memories I'm silent

In my daydreams I am bold

I leave tender notes and markings where I go and I've never been pretending

Its the evenings when I lie

I've been silently admiring the simple way she wears her hair

If its a question of my loyalty

you never have to worry

I'll be with you wherever you may go

There's a calmness in my footsteps in the new lines of my hands there are portraits on the wall that need explaining and the evenings are quiet when I've finally broken through getting color in the nighttime when its not that way

If its a question of my loyalty

you never have to worry

I'll be with you wherever you may go

Sitting safely in your memory easy for you to carry take me with you wherever you may go

don't you see, they wear diamond rings but I kinda like the river low
