

There Is an Everlasting Song

Belle and Sebastian

There is an everlasting song on my lips
I got up early so I don't let that song slip
And mighty is the voice I'm singing with
It beats out all the dread
Defeats the eyes of darkness
There is an everlasting promise to be made
My ink is wet, there is no paper could contain
The depth of feeling that I pledge to you
Solemn as the sea, solemn as the sea
There is an everlasting morning near the sun
It burns a hole in my heart, makes me want to run
And I would run all day if they give me the choice
I hear your voice, I hear your voice
I hear your voice There is an everlasting gladness of the heart
The stranger looks at me and loves me as I am
One day I stand upon the river's secret shore
And feel the sun, I feel the sun There is an everlasting sadness all around
It's bigger than the news, from this you cannot run
A woman's magazine, a column in the mail
Can't help you now, can't help you now
I love the summer birds, they sing no word of lie
The air is cruel, the frost will cast them as they fly
But glorious the sun returns to wake the year
They show no fear, they show no fear
They show no fear
