

There's Room in this Heart tonight

Chris de Burgh

How many times can I look in your eyes,
And say I have nothing to give?
And how many more times must I wake in the night,
With dreams of the way that you live? Well I can hear you crying in silence,
I can see you lost in the dark,
And I am near you, turn to me now,
There's room in this heart tonight; So many people all over the world,
Are living in pain and despair,
And so many reach out for the hand that can help,
Still calling to nobody there; Well I can hear you crying in silence,
I can see you lost in the dark,
And I am near you, turn to me now,
There's room in this heart tonight; There is a part of everyone,
That cannot see and cannot hear,
Because we don't want to know,
But somewhere there's a bigger heart,
That's reaching out for all of us,
A place to go; There are so many in life,
Who need a helping hand,
Somebody who can heal the pain; Yes, I can hear you, crying in silence,
I can see you, you're lost in the dark,
And I am near you, turn to me now,
There's room in this heart tonight,
There's room in this heart tonight,
There's room in this heart tonight.
