Moon on Your Pyjamas

Paul Weller

Was that a shooting star I saw?
It's rare for me to make a wish at all
Because I feel that I can only hope
These dangerous times, we are barely afloatNow I hope the world will heal itself
Our worn out souls along with it
So that you'll get the chance to say
That you have seen a better dayYou've got the moon on your pyjamas
And the stars in your eyes
Sweet child you're a dream in disguise
Angels on silver strings hang from above
Let love and laughter shine wherever you goFor your new eyes I've come to see How beautiful my life can be
And I'll keep this wish this time I think
And blow it in with a kiss upon your headAnd I hope the world will heal itself
And our worn out souls along with it
So that you will get the chance to see
A summers blue sky behind green treesOh you've got the moon on your pyjamas
And the stars in your eyes
Sweet child you're a dream in disguise
Angels on silver strings hang from above
Let love and laughter shine wherever you goGot the moon on your pyjamas and the stars in your eyes
Oh sweet child you're a dream in disguise
Got the moon on your pyjamas and the stars in your eyes
Got the moon on your pyjamas and the stars in your eyes
