

Crazy Sheila

Neurosonic

Sad day for Sheila with her jellyfish smile
Contemplating all the choices she made
I have to admit when she decided she would leave
You couldn't wipe the smile off of my face
She finally found her way home
To find that all she'd left is gone
Pictures of herself on the walls wearing nothing
I guess just to try to fit in
You have to agree she was all sixes and sevens
But that doesn't ever add up to ten
She finally found her way home
To find that all she'd left is gone
You know the crazy bitch
Would never back down an inch
Or admit that she would cheat on her man
The word was getting around
It was time to leave town
She took a hint and unexpectedly ran
She finally found her way home
To find that all she'd left is gone
She finally found her way home
To find that all she'd left is gone
