

Man Enough

Lloyd Cole

Now that the low life has no meaning
'Cause you've been there, now you're gone
But your heart won't keep from cheating
It's stringing you along Stranger to me, well, what's the lowdown
Are you man enough to pray?
For a better way of living
I believe I've lost my way Oh may, could you please hold me?
I believe I might fall
I believe that I might fall Could there be a better way of living
Better than the easy way
Could the wretched be forgiven
Are you man enough to pray? Wore my heart upon my sleeve
To court the wretched and the free
But if by chance I'd lost my way
Would you help me find it, babe? Oh may, could you please hold me?
I believe that I might fall
I believe I might fall Now that the low life has no meaning
'Cause you've been there, now you're gone
But your heart won't keep from cheating
It's stringing you along Wore my heart upon my sleeve
To court the wretched and the free
But if by chance I'd lost my way
Would you help me find it, babe? Oh may, could you please hold me?
I believe that I might fall
I believe that I might fall Wore my heart upon my sleeve
To court the wretched and the free
But if by chance I'd lost my way Am I man enough to pray?
Am I man enough to pray?
Are you man enough to pray?
Are you man enough to pray?
